

FIRST NATIONS REFERRALS OFFICER TRAINING

The Carrier Sekani Tribal Council (CSTC) has developed a First Nations Referrals Officer Training Program (ROTP) that is focused on assisting First Nations with building capacity to manage referrals and consultation requests regarding natural resource management projects. The ROTP has been designed for First Nations technical and leadership staff working for First Nations governments. Participants of the ROTP should meet the following criteria:

- 1) Be willing to participate, learn and provide constructive feedback into the training program;
- 2) Be able to participate in a respectful and supportive learning environment;
- 3) Be able to participate for the full 5 days; No pre-paid travel is available. All travel must be covered by participants, and is reimbursable by CSTC (if applicable), according to CSTC travel rates;
- 4) Have some experience in working for a First Nation or Tribal Council/Association;
- 5) Grade 12 is encouraged but not required.

This 5-day program will cover the basics on why referrals and consultation management is needed in First Nations communities. Students will also leave with an improved understanding of office and information management, natural resource management 101, communication and analytical skills, basic mapping skills, and decision-making processes.

REGISTRATION IS OPEN!!!

We are offering several 5-day sessions throughout BC, free to First Nations. First 2 sessions are now open for registration.
